grandfather the wedding will be a quiet one.

President Lincoln's foundness for children is a matter of history. I was, therefore, interested to hear at a luncheon the other day the following story, which was told me by the herome of it. One day a member of tae President's official family was much alarmed on returning to his home opposite the Ebbut Hoase on F street to learn from the barse, who, frantic with grief and excitement, stood wringing her lands, that he baby, about three years of age, and two older enidiren, lad disappeared from in front of the doorwhere they had been playing. Mr. — started his entire household out on the search and hinself jumped into a carriage to drive to the police station and give a general alarm, for those were unquiet days at the unition's Capital.

One of his clerks bethought him to follow in the feoristeps of some treops that had passed along F street oil their way to the White House, where they were to be reviewed by the President, thinking that with childlish love of music and display they might have foilowed the soldiers. His judgment was confirmed, for as he approaches the Executive Manaion, the grounds of which were filled with military, he saw playing on the steps the two cleer children, and snuggied up by the President's tall, spare form, with one arm thrown protectingly about her, was the baby as happy and comfortable as if she had been in her mother's a rms.

It was a matter of gratification to all mother's arms.

It was a matter of gratification to all those who have had doubts concerning the physical perfections of the Cleveland habies to see their bright, smiling little faces in a box at the matinee recently.

One can understand and sympathize with Mrs. Cleveland's dislike of notoriety, but the other extreme is equally objectionable, and no crowned head has ever surrounded himself with so impregnable a wall as the wife of the President has built up about her children, with doubtless, the best of intentions, but with the result of making every one oclieve that some terrible physical or mental defect is the cause of this precaution. As a matter of fact, the Cleveland

THEY SAW AND WERE SEEN children are physically and mentally as sound, bright, mischievous and full of life as it is possible for children to be, and the reports concerning them that have gained credence are greatly to be deplored.

A society young woman, just returned from a two weeks' stay at "The Hub," is very appreciative of the social attractions of that metropolis, and quite enthusiastic over apicture of the model-exploited airs. Jack Gardiner, painted by Zora about a year ago, which is one of the most interesting portraits, says the young woman fresh from the center of culture and crucition, that she has ever seen.

It represents Mrs. Gardiner standing in an open doorway, her arms, which are bare, which are bare, which extended, the black night behind her, a brilliantly lighted room in front. Her decoliete robe light in texture and color, and about her beautiful neck are a string of pearls reaching almost to her knee. The whole arrangement is very striking, and altogether like Mrs. Jack Gardiner, whose appetite for nevelty is seemingly inexhaustible.

Mrs. Hearst, whose home is a treasure-tionse of so much that is beautiful in art, as added much to hercollection during her theence abroad. Most costly and unique is absence abroad. Most costly and unique is her collection of miniatures, especially those of the First Empire period, and her paintings and curios surpass in value those of many impseums. Mrs. Hearst has a rare and beautiful collection of fans and laces, the latter being insured for $50.600. She has lately purchased in Russia and Sweden a number of specimens of face work.

Mrs. Hearst will have Miss Florence Bayard with her during the winter.

Mrs. Stockbridge is in the city, and will occupy the residence belonging to Senator Sawyer, on Connecticut avenue.

Mrs. Groome, widow of the late ex Gov. Groome of Maryland, will shortly be married to Mr. Fendall Young of Philadelphia.

Ex-Gov, and Mrs. Shepherd have taken the Grestian apartments at the Arlington and will occupy them during the winter. Gov. Shepherd will be tendered a banquet at the Arlington on November 20.

Miss Marcia Swormstedt of Takoma Park is the guest of her cousin.

Miss Loraine Rodgers of New York ave-me has returned from a protracted visit o the South. John Pattison Barnes has returned from lower Maryland, where he has been duck-shooting for the past ten days.

The friends of Miss Mary Lawrence of New Jersey avenue will be pleased to learn that she is convalescing from her protracted illness.

Miss Anna Peatrice Mullin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mallin of Tenleytown, was married yesterday to Mr. W. Seiden-berg of this city. The ceremony was per-formed at St. Ann's Church, Tenleytown, at So clock p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ellis of Fortress Mon-roe have been the recent guests of Miss Eliza J. Ellis of Delaware avenue north-east.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Allen gave a party last night to their daughter Edna, in honor of her fourteenth burthday, at their home on Sixth street northeast. The guests were presented upon their entrance with pretty silver bracelets for the girls and sleeve links for the boys as souvenirs of the occasion. Abong the pretty features of the evening were the finney dances by Misses Eva and Fay Wells and the violin solos by Master Henry Wise.

Among those present were Misses Dottle Jacobs, Nellie Rogers, Marie Duval, Aima and Nettle Baker and Masters John France, Harry Linden, Johnny Allson, Jesse Robinson, Frank Elton, John Jackson, Eddie Leech and Bonald and Frederick Wise.

BANQUET OF ENDEAVORERS

We've never offered greater values than these. We are doing a larger Cloak and Millery business than ever before. Dine at Freunds.

> Good Will One of the Chief Characteristics of the Evening-Some of the Toasts.

Good will and wit characterized the clegant banquet Tiven last night by the "lads and lassies hearty" who journeyed to Boston lately as delegates of the Christian Endeavor Society. Freund's Hall was beautifully decorated with white chrysmathemums and paims, the chandeliers festooned with red and white ribbons, the Boston colors, and the long table glittered with glass and silver and was spread with temping viands. Mr. Norman T. Elhot speared on the programme astonstmaster, Mr. Percy S. Footer, assistant toasimaster, and each performed the duty assigned him with tact and grace.

Mr. Ames at sound, president, addressed the company on "Beauties of the Hub," revelling in picturesque language; Miss Sue brookett recited "Carving the puck," quite cleverly. The trials and tributations of the sansaant boastmaster, who was in charge of accommodations for the party on tarir recent trib were humorously described by him. Mr. Elphonzo Youngs, ir., piavet a Scotch ballau delightfully on the cornet. Mr. John B. Sleman, Jr., paid a picasant tribate to the Union Congregational Church, Boston, whose young people so hospitably entertained the delegation.

Miss Mattle Bartle sung an original song, composed by Mr. John Ir Morgan. "How to Government Interference.

Miss Mattie Bartle sung an original song, composed by Mr. John Dr. Morgan. "How it feit to be left at hone," was feelingly described by Mr. John Dr. Morgan. "How it feit to be left at hone," was feelingly described by Mr. H. C. Metcair, and arr. W. H. Binith held the attention of all with a sketch of "From the Hub to the Capital." Three-minute spokes from the Hub! followed, all bright and characterisme. It was a joiny reason, the gaiety and pleasure combining with a pervading religious sense, proving as Mr. Bradley and pleasure combining with a pervading religious sense, proving as Mr. Bradley arter commented, "the day of long-faced translamy is over." "Ninety-five," a grateful anthem dedicated to Boston, and the composition of Mr. Morgan, was sung standing, and following inc Mizpah benediction, the company dispersed.

London, Nov. 15.—The prospects of a settlement of the strike of the shiphuiders on the Clyde grow more remote. The employers refuse to submit the dispute to mediation, and will only treat with delegates from the men.

The government recently appointed Mr. Gerald Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, to use his good offices to secure a settlement of the strike, it being stated that as selection was due to the desire of the admiralty that there he no delay in existing contracts for the building of war ships or vessels that could be used as auxiliary croisers. It was also stated that Mr. Balfour would connect the shipbuilding firms, not only on the Clyde, but at Belfast, to concede the demands of the men.

From the above dispatches, however, it aprens that the employers do not propose to submit to any government interference to submit to any government interference and will settle the dispute on terms to be decided upon after conference with repre-sentatives of the strikers.

Stumbling Blocks of every nature, abuse and misrepresentation have been thrown in the way of butterine. Everything possible to prejudice the public against it has been attempted by parties to whom butterine's success meant failure. In spite of all, butterine has triumphed. "Truth is mighty and will prevail." If butterine was not actually better in every possible qualification than butter, it would have died an early death. But true merit wins.
